AN ALLEGED ROOSEVELTIAN RUSE.

Washington, April 21. A section of the Democratic Press of the United States accuses President Roosevelt of urging his naval programme for the construction of four battleships and eight sub marines solely for the purpose of frightening his countrymen into an appreciation of his worth. These papers incline to the belief that Roosevelt really desires to he nominated for the presidency with a view to running again.

Success Without Assimilation.

"It is possible for English rule in India to endure without any complete assimilation of rulers and ruled," says the "Pioneer." "Sympathy and friendship can exist even where there is a difference in ideals." After all it is the trifles that tell most in our life and it may be said that our difficulties in India are not so much difficulties of Swadeshi and Swaraj, as of manners. The true intercourse will only come when both, parties learn instinctively to put themselves in each other's place. There are faults; of course, on both sides. On ours let it be freely admitted that the composition system, while sipplying brilliant brains to the service of India, has not by any means always produced men of the kind most urgently needed, and that conditions of lifein the East are not such as to remedy faults in early training. A system, of course, must not be condemned for a few failures -- and the failures after all are not so many it might perhaps, however, he modified with advantage so as to exclude as far as possible the entry into India of any of these undesirable aliens,171

At the Supreme Court to-day, before he Chief Justice, Sir F. On Nov. 7" 1906, after evidence of misconduct had been taken on commission in Hongkoug, a decree of divorce was obtained. Plaintiffnow claimed payment of $10,000 as damages, and a further $15,175.40 being especial damages incurred by the plaintiff in connection with the divorce proceedings.

Mr Slade said he had to argue the question of law which arose out of those proceedings. The question of law which was raised was under the modern practice in place of the old demurring. It was an action for criminal conversation and in 1857 such jurisdiction was abolished in the Common Law Courts in England and transferred entirely to the Matrimonial Courts. Up to that time an action forcriminal conversation could be brought in England in the Common Law Court, but after 1857 it was absolutely and entirely abolished, and the like jurisdiction was given to the Divorce Court. That court (the Supreme Court) was regulated by the Supreme Court Ordinance of 1873, which was passed twelve years later than the passing of the divorce and Matrimonia Courts Act at Home. He submitted that the meaning of the section in the Ordinance, that when it ways "except so far as the said laws are not applicable to the laws of the Colony," the section was not practicable, if it has been repealed by the local legislature. This Ordinance was ing to criminal conversation in England:

> Colony relating to criminal conversation. Mr Pollock argued that section nine of the Interpretation Ordinance of 1897 did not apply, and they had to turn to the Ordinance of 1858 to see whether it repealed mny previous enactments. Urlinance five slid not purport to repeal any previous enactments, but on the contrary it had, on the face of it, to extend to this Colony certain provisions contained in certain Imperial enactments. Therefore it was clear that the provisions of section nine of the Ordinance were not applicable to the consideration of the present case. In other words, he aubmitted that the Oxdinance number five of 1858 being reported by the Ordinance of 1860, it is repealed for good and all, as if it never existed and whatever force the Ordinance of 1845 had as regards an action for damages f r criminal convensation was continued after 1860. He therefore argued that it still continued up to the present. It must also be borne in mind that in England the phintiff had his remedy, and could bring an action for damages in the same court as he was bringing his action for divorce ngainst the co-respondent, but according to his learned friend's argument they could not bring such an action in that court. which was not the case. Judgment was reserved.

At the ond of 1905 during the political reaction when thousands of people all over Russia were shot or hanged because they asked for the in public against the abuses of the autocracy many of the persecuted Russians fied to Japan. Some went on to America, others The reported call at Canton of the remained in Japan. Among the latter were doctors, engineers, lawyers, professors, officers and industrial workers. A revolutionary paper "Liberty" in the Russian language was started at Nagasaki in the spring of 1906. The Editor was Mr Orjich who had been imprisoned the effect that Japan wants to compel a by Alexander III for 13 years. The aim of the paper was to expose the cruelties of the reactionary Russian Government.

Publication was continued until February, 1907. Most of the political refugees supported themselves by working as compositors on the paper. The printing office in which the paper was produced is still pub-lishing political pamphlets and placards. "Liberty" was not in the worst sense a the mutiny occurred on Russian warships oriticised the Vladivostock revolutionists for joining this unorganised revolt.

Naturally the existence of this paper within a two days' journey of Vladivostocl was a "splint in the foot" of the Russian authorities. They did their hest to secure the suppression of the paper and to have the refugees driven from Nagasaki. Mr Polianovski, the Consul at Nagasaki was a very willing insthument in the hands of the Russian Government. Efforts were made to induce the Japanese Government to sign an Extradition Treaty by which these refugees would be handed over to Russia. These efforts being productive of no immediate effect Mr Polianovski took action on his own account. Rumour began to circulate in the Russian colony at Nagasaki that after April 1 they would be banded over by the Japanese Government to the Russian authorities by virtue of the Extradition Treaty which came into force on that date. The source of those rumours could not be traced. The Consu at Nagasaki told the Japanese local authorities that the presence of the refugees was injurious to trade as it kept high Russian military and other officials from going to Nagasaki. As a matter of fact the presence of some 20 exiles had no effect upon tradal conditions. The refugees were law-abiding, and scrupulously refrained from abusing the hospitality of the country in which they had found a haven. Owing to the uncertainty which prevailed as to the attitude of the Japanese Government in regard to the Extradition Treaty some of the refugees left before having ascertained the truths of the rumour. THE FIRES AT PEKING.

Results of the Investigation.

PEKING, April 22. Official investigation of the recent fires here shows that they are devoid of special significance, and they are now regarded as ordinary outbreaks, with the exception of the one which occurred in the Lama

Owing to reports of thefts from this institution an inventory of its contents had been ordered. But on the day preceding that on which the inventory was to have been taken, the fire occurred. Presumably it was a device on the part of the priests to cover up traces of their delinquencies. The damage done by this conflagration amounted to Tls. 3,000 .- " N.-C. Daily

Bad Sores Spread All Over His Head-Grew Worse Under Dector's Care -Cuticura Effects Perfect Cure, Bringing Relief with First Set.

FATHER RECOMMENDS CUTICURA TO EVERY ONE

when my little boy was about four years old (he is now about six and a haif years) a spot appeared on the side of his face just under the ear. After a time it broke and spread further down. I took him to a doctor as soon as it appeared. He was under his orders for about three or four months when he was much worse. Seeing in a paper a Cuticura advertisement I. went and got a complete set of the Cuticura Remedies, the Cuticura Ointment, Cuti-cura Soap, and Cuticura Resolvent. I took him away from the ductors and gave him these Cuticura Remedies. used two large bottles of Reselvent, -five tablets of Cuticura Scep, and two or three tins of Cuticipa Cintment.

From the first bettle he began to mend and before he had finished the two he was wholly mended. About twelve months after he broke out again at the back of the neck and it spread all over the head. I had one large and two small bottles of Cuticura Rescivent, three tins of Cuticura Continent, and four tablets of Cuticura Soap before I got it mended. I think it took me about three months each time. It is now about eighteen months since he was ill, and it has not broken out again.

so I think he is all right now, thanks to Cuticura. I siways recommend Cuticura wherever I can, and I will always have pleasure in answering any inquiries. R. Scarth, 25 Newport Rd., Middlesborough, York, June 24, 1906.
